A plugin that randomly resurfaces 10 notes every day for review. Check out MyMind's "Serendipity" feature for inspiration: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UTWM-fwFMIw>.

Requirements:

1. Shown as a Daily Jot suggestion, the plugin can be invoked to start the 10-note review process (number of notes should be configurable)
2. Notes that are chosen for review should be older (last edited date) than 6 months (period should be configurable)
3. Notes should be chosen at random, but we should give higher probability to untagged notes
4. The plugin displays every note one at a time, showing the option to (A) Remove, (B) Keep and (C) Visit Note
5. Removing a note doesn't actually remove it, just applies a tag called "reviews/to-be-deleted" (tag name should be configurable)
6. Keeping a note does nothing to it
7. We should display each note with its title, the first few rows of its content and an image (if any)

8. V2 of this app should contain other useful options for each note, namely: (1) "MARK TO BE REVIEWED" which adds a tag called "reviews/to-be-reviewed" and (2) "ADD A TAG" which lets the user choose a tag to add to the note

9. Once the user completes the daily review of the 10 notes, the Jot suggestion disappears

10. In addition to the daily review, the user can manually start as many reviews as they like using Quick Open and typing "manual note review", which triggers another set of 10 notes.
